CITIZEN OF LOGAN.

A "Globe-trotter" But Never Crossed an Ocean.

I have seen the sky-towering Vesuvius vomit forth its molten products from the seething bowels of the earth; I have seen the peaceful landscapes of sunny France stretch lazily under the sun, shaded by the graceful, heaven-spiraling Lombardy poplar and dotted here and there with century-old cathedrals; I have seen the yellow flood of the Ganges billow onward between its temple-strewn banks; I have seen the monster watchdogs of the nations plowing up the deep with their mighty paws; I have seen the horrors, the devastations and woes wrought on smiling cities and peaceful inhabitants by the terror-dealing convulsions of Nature; I have seen the monster pyramids with aeons of time resting on their weary shoulders and with the mystic spirit of the past brooding over them; I have seen the present-day marvels of mechanical science annihilating space and time in their terrific rush over ribbons of steel with the wonderful spirit of the future blazing forth in its promise; I have seen the peasants of the life-teeming south take the luscious grape, bursting its purple mantle with its golden juice, and vint the marvels of wine whose secrets have been handed down as the priceless legacies of ages of ancestors; I have seen the moral lepers of society—the criminal—do his enforced labor with hanging head and hope-forsaken eye, surrounded by intractable steel and stone; I have seen the beehives of the world teeming with their myriads of humanity who enjoy all the conveniences and refinements and luxuries of the highest of civilization; and I have seen the white, barren, wind-swept stretches of an Arctic plain with its lone Eskimo dragging the slain reindeer to his hut of ice for a six months' night supply of food. And you need not have the hour glass of Father Time himself, nor the wealth of Croesus to see the joys and sorrows, the works and plays of every class and condition of men that dwell in the center and the veriest corners of this vast sphere. You need not step out of the narrow confines of Logan to view these wonders, for they are all at your door.

You will not find them in the thousands of books in your public or private libraries, nor can the most brilliant of lecturers picture them to your minds—you need only step into the moving picture theatre in your leisure moments and there at a cost less than what you would pay for a visit to an uninteresting and unentertaining musical comedy you will gain more and see more than with a lifetime of globe-trotting.

You—nor I—cannot comprehend what the moving picture means and is going to mean to us in our economic, historic and social life. When we as children on our parents' knees had our youthful imaginations fired by the marvels of the fairy world being recounted to us, our wildest dreams did not approach the wonders that the modern moving picture machine throws on the canvas. The moving picture machine is the Aladdin's lamp of the twentieth century. It brings more to our wondering gaze and side than the most faithful of fabled genii could produce at their master's wildest commands. But we are unimpressed—we of the marvel-laden twentieth century. We talk over hundreds of miles of space by means of the thinnest of wires and do not give it a second's thought. We send an electric spark over the surging waste of the ocean and save a thousand lives by it—and it is forgotten the next day.

The twin-sister of the moving picture machine—the phonograph, has preserved for our descendants the beautiful voices and master music of our day. The moving picture is accomplishing more. It is making unexcelled and unsurpassed records of history and action. The library of the future will contain stocks of films demonstrating better than books the life, the political, social and economic states of a people. Our bacteriological science, our conquests in physiology, anthropology and surgery, will all be recorded without the shadow of an error creeping in.

A tremendous force of culture as well as amusement is what the moving picture machine represents. Sitting back in the cushioned seat of a theatre the world is brought before our eyes. An invaluable saving—an economy in time, money, energy and experience is what it means. The moving picture is not an adjunct of the playhouse. It is comedy, tragedy, drama, life rolled into a telling compactness. Nothing harmful is taught by it, but on the other hand, it gives all that is interesting and helpful and even inspired.

The moving picture industry today reaches a high degree of perfection, both in America and Europe. There are more millions invested in it than there are in Standard Oil. Large stock companies of performers who are perfect in that most difficult of dramatic art—that of pantomime—go through rehearsals as perfect in scenery, in costume and effects as in the finest of grand operas. The greatest of dramas are acted effectively and logically in a few minutes of time. Trained, skillful specialists search the best literature of all peoples and ages to find and construct tableaux that will render faithfully and vividly occurrences of history that will prove interesting and beneficial.

There is no higher type of entertainment in the world's history—from the most ancient of the Greek dramas to the highest form of present day opera—than the moving picture. It is coming to mean a better America, for it is patronized by millions of the masses and is bringing them to a higher, more cultured life through its undeniable educational value.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Fitting Celebration and Splendid Parade.

The thirtieth day of May coming on Sunday, the Memorial day of the old soldiers was celebrated Monday in Logan. On Sunday the veterans marched in a body to the Presbyterian Church and listened to a very able sermon preached by Rev. Wilson.

Monday forenoon the graves were decorated by the children and soldiers' committees, escorted by the Logan Band, and in the afternoon a parade was formed of the band, firing squad, old soldiers and woman's relief corps, and all marched to the Soldiers' square in Oak Grove Cemetery, where the Soldiers' and Relief Corps ritualistic service was held. Returning, all assembled at the Presbyterian Church where Rev. Correll delivered the Memorial address in most eloquent command of language.

The following is the program of the day, and the roster of the old Soldiers laid to rest in the Logan cemeteries:

Queen Esther Circle Will Give Entertainment

At the regular meeting of the Queen Esther Circle on Tuesday evening, it was decided to give an entertainment some time soon at the M. E. church. Part of the money thus earned will be donated to the church improvement fund. The Circle was divided into two societies, "The Marguerites," under the leadership of Miss Hester Mercer and "The Hostlers," under the leadership of Miss Margaret Cook. It was decided that the society selling the largest number of tickets for the entertainment will decorate the church on that evening with their colors. The Marguerites chose white and gold and The Hostlers, red and white. Misses Precious Correll, Hester Mercer and Margaret Cook are the committee in charge. Watch for the date.

Mr. Eck Sands, genial, jovial, optimistic, sunshiney Eck, was in Logan this week circulating among his friends here. He represents New York papers at our Capital City.

A New High School Building.

The erection of a new High School Building is a splendid solution to the problem presenting itself in consequence of the crowded condition of our schools. The verdict of the state inspector together with the disapproval of the old building by the visitor of the Ohio State University has made it manifest that not only grade buildings were called for, but also a High School Building. An expenditure for three buildings did not seem to be expedient at this time, and the erection of a building adapted for the High School and for several grades in addition made a reduction in the cost to a considerable extent, and supplied the impending needs in a satisfactory way that it would seem to those who have studied the situation to be the most feasible plan proposed. Not only in this manner are the high school and the grades suitably housed at a saving that is important, but the new building provides for a large auditorium, and an auditorium is one of the greatest needs of Logan today.

Lancaster Campmeeting.

We have on our table a program of the Lancaster Campmeeting and assembly, which cover the dates of August 5 to 22. It is our pleasure to thank Supt. H. T. Silverthorne for the advanced program, and are proud to write that he is on the Assembly board and was charged with the arduous duty of superintending of program for this year.

Among those programed who are familiar and renowned are H. R. Harrington of Logan, in his pleasing chalk-talk, "The Man and the Molluscoid"; Homer Rodehaver, of Hocking county, will entertain the children in slight of hand, and also render many numbers with his rich baritone voice.

Governor Folk, of Missouri, will speak Saturday, August 21.

Dr. John Rutledge will deliver an address on temperance.

Rev. L. C. Sparks will preach on August 11, and Rev. W. C. L. Correll on August 7.

Glenview Heights, Lot Sale, Saturday, June 5.

Common Pleas Court

The last jury trial for this term of court was tried Friday and Saturday of last week. The case was that of the State vs Alfred Buck, for shooting with intent to kill or wound. The defendant claimed that he did not do the shooting that was alleged to have been done on a certain occasion, when several young people were fired upon, but not injured. However, the jury found that he did the shooting, but that he had no intention to kill or wound. That he was trying to frighten the crowd. He was given four months in the work house for his fun.

Tag Day in Moving Pictures.

Saturday will be Tag Day in Logan and Saturday night will be "Tag Day" right at the moving picture show at the Opera House. 3000 feet of the highest selected pictures will be shown, besides the illustrated "Tag Day." The feature picture will be "Tag Day," one of the funniest pictures ever made. Another special on Saturday night's program is to be Lew Dockstader's Ministerial Mishaps in which Mr. Gene Belt will impersonate Lew Dockstader. No advance in admission prices will be made—5 and 10 cents.

R. R. News

Conductor Bert Wilson of local freight is laying off and W. E. Petty is on his run. Harry Ervin has Petty's place.

The monthly statement for April of the Hocking Valley Ry., shows a net gain of $117,000 over the same month of last year.

Master Mechanic W. H. Cowell has been promoted to a better position on the H. V. and Chas. Rafferty taken charge in Logan. Mr. Cowell has been the 'old man' at the Logan round house and machine shops for more than 28 years.

Democratic Newspaper.

Some Columbus Capitalists business men and politicians have gotten together and incorporated a printing concern that will take over the Columbus Press-Post, and establish one of the largest Democratic Dailies in Ohio. Members of the State Democratic Committee are among the incorporators, and Editor Harper, of Washington, C. H., will take charge of the editorial staff.

LOGAN ADVANCING.

New Business Buildings to be Erected in the Near Future

The wrecking of the old Juniper Building on Main street, which is now about accomplished, and the proposed erection of a new and handsome brick business block by the Rempel's, is happily to be commended, but is not the only blessing coming the way of our village uplift. The Wright heirs, who own the old building on Main street, opposite the Court House, propose next year, when the store-room leases run out, to tear down that old building, and erect a handsome brick business block from the Rempel Bank building to the Acker building. This is certainly a good business proposition and a happy stride for the town.

Oil and Gas Notes

The Dividend Oil & Gas company, who received their charter today, purchased 305 acres of choice leases in the Bremen oil field, including a 38 acre lease up against the Alberta well at Junction City for $30,000 cash.

At a depth of 300 feet the Gore company drilling on the William Lehman farm struck a small flow of shell oil and gas.

The Maxville company are at work on their well on the Woods farm, and nothing preventing, they will drill in the latter part of this week.

The new Plymouth Oil and Gas company, of Columbus, was incorporated last Wednesday with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are Lester Rush, J. T. Bull, W. E. Singer, W. B. Ronick and W. M. Vornholt. The Hudson Oil and Gas company, of Junction City, was incorporated on Wednesday with a capital stock of $30,000 by Jacob Forsythe and others.

There is a great race on in the Junction City oil district between the drillers for the Magnetic company of Columbus, and those of the Columbus Gas and Fuel company. Both companies started oil wells just about the same time, and Saturday night the drills of both companies were down 2,500 feet. Each crew is striving to beat the other to sand, and many bets are being registered on the outcome of the race. Both wells are in proved territory, and drillers say that there is no doubt but that both will be producers.

Reports of the Standard Oil company at the end of last week show that there is now the largest amount of crude oil in storage in the history of the country, the quantity approximating 100,000,000 barrels. This large surplus is one of the principal reasons for the cuts which have been made in the price of crude oil. Another is in the decline in the exports, the cut in price of refined oil in all the British possessions and the tariff agitation.

On last Friday evening a new company was organized known as the Murray City Oil & Gas Company. This is made up entirely of Murray Citizens. They hold leases in the vicinity of New Lexington not far from the Pike and Gibraltar wells.

The Company organized as follows: Geo. W. Vansickle was elected, Pres.; E. A. Cox, Vice Pres.; Thomas Byron, Sec'y.; and M. D. Stahl, Treas. The Directors are: John Lovett, E. A. Cox, A. Landau, Chas. Ralph, Chas. Seidenfeld, G. W. Vansickle and G. W. Christmann.

The Oil Well on the late Philip Howdysheff farm, was shot Saturday with a good showing of oil.

The drillers returned to work on the W. H. Goodville well, Sunday midnight.

The Woods and Grand wells are almost in.

Council Meeting.

On Tuesday night the Village Council met in called session, to work out the figures of their levy ordinance, and also consider the ordinance accepting the plat of the Glenview Heights addition. The levy ordinance was not presented, but the figures were agreed upon, and the ordinance to accept the Glenview Heights addition was laid over.
